

The 'Big Brother' By-Election Is Beginning To Stink

Friday, 04 July 2008

ELECTION UPDATE

The 'Big Brother' By-Election is a SHAM

Please circulate this article

The 'Big Brother' By-Election Is Beginning To Stink

Why are 'Neocons' behind the Big Brother State supporting David Davis in his 'opposition' to the Big Brother State?

Ed Vaizey

Conservative Member of Parliament, Ed Vaizey, came to the Haltemprice and Howden 'Big Brother' by-election campaign to 'support' the stance that his colleague David Davis claims to be waging against an Orwellian society.

This is very strange given Vaizey's background which connects with the very people who are seeking to impose the Big Brother State that he and Davis now say they oppose.

What goes on?

By David Icke

Ed Vaizey, the MP for Wantage and Didcot, is one of the signatories of principles for the Henry Jackson Society, a 'think tank' that mirrors the aims and agenda of the Project for the New American Century 'think tank' that was the driving and manipulating force behind the 'war on terror' and the invasions of Afghanistan and Iraq (see The David Icke Guide To The Global Conspiracy for the detailed background).

The Project for the New American Century (PNAC), which interconnects with other Neocon, or 'neoconservative', groups like the American Enterprise Institute, published a document in September 2000 called Rebuilding America's Defences: Strategies, Forces and Resources For A New Century.

This laid out a plan for invasion of target countries that was instigated by the Bush administration which was peopled by the very architects behind the document. These included Dick Cheney, Donald Rumsfeld and Paul Wolfowitz who were fundamental players in the imposition of the 'war on terror' that has been used to justify the Orwellian transformation we are experiencing.

President Bush's famous speech about the 'Axis of Evil' in which he named Iraq, Iran and North Korea was written by David Frum, a Neocon at the American Enterprise Institute. The speech came straight from the pages of the Project for the New American Century document.

Also, the document said that this plan could not be instigated in a short time frame without 'some catastrophic and catalyzing event-like a new Pearl Harbor'. This came, right on time, with the attacks of 9/11, which Bush called 'Our Pearl Harbor'.

From that moment, justified by 9/11, the plans detailed in the PNAC document were rapidly unleashed with the invasions of Afghanistan and Iraq, the targeting of Iran, and the 'war on terror' in general.

Which brings us to the 'Big Brother' by-election.

The Big Brother State that Ed Vaizey now claims to oppose in his support of fellow Conservative, David Davis, has been justified by the very war on terror that was instigated by members of the very Henry Jackson Society that Vaizey has been promoting from its creation in 2005.

This makes no sense whatsoever, unless the 'Big Brother' by-election, triggered when sitting MP David Davis resigned and sought re-election on the issue of the Big Brother State, is a scam and a sham.

The Henry Jackson Society is based at Peterhouse College at Cambridge University and is named after the American Democratic senator who was a prime inspiration of the Neocon movement through organisations like the Project for the New American Century and the American Enterprise Institute, so widely exposed in my books.

Henry 'Scoop' Jackson

People think that the Neocon cabal that has dominated the Bush administration since the village idiot came to 'power' in 2000 must have been spawned by the Republican Party, but in fact key members came from the Democratic followers of Henry 'Scoop' Jackson, as he was known.

Neoconservatives Richard Perle, Paul Wolfowitz, Elliott Abrams, and Douglas Feith were former Democratic aides to Jackson who jumped ship to the Reagan administration after 1980 and became major architects and manipulators of policy in the Bush years.

Henry Jackson's belief in using force to remove regimes he didn't like and 'bringing democracy' to the target country through military intervention has been the inspiration of Republican Neocon groups like the Project for the New American Century and the American Enterprise Institute that have been behind the war on terror and the American and British wars of acquisition in the name of protecting the world from 'terrorists'.

The Henry Jackson Society was founded in Britain in 2005 and was named after an American senator and not a famous British figure for a simple reason: it is a Neocon operation, the British version of the Project for the New American Century, and it has precisely the same goals – the creation of an Orwellian global state and world domination through military force, technological surveillance, and the control of food, water and all resources.

The group is named after Jackson because he is one of the heroes of the American Neocon cabal and if you need any more confirmation of that then just look at its personnel:

Along with Ed ‘I am against Big Brother and support David Davis’ Vaizey, another name on the Henry Jackson Society’s statement of principles is Irwin Stelzer, former managing director of the Rothschild bank, a contributor to the Murdoch-owned Neocon rag in Washington, the Weekly Standard, a resident scholar at the American Enterprise Institute, and now working with another Neocon ‘think-tank’, the Hudson Institute, where David Davis has been paid to speak. Davis has also been paid to speak by the American Enterprise Institute.

Among the ‘International Patrons’ of the ‘British’ Henry Jackson Society are leading US Neocons Richard Perle, William Kristol, Robert Kagan and James Woolsey, all from the Project for the New American Century (PNAC). It was William Kristol, editor of the Murdoch Weekly Standard, who co-founded the PNAC with Robert Kagan.

Bill ‘send them all to war to die so long as I stay here in the warm’ Kristol

Robert ‘sounds good to me, Bill’ Kagan

James Woolsey, a former director of the CIA, will have much to discuss with another Henry Jackson Society member and original signatory, Sir Richard Dearlove, head of Britain’s MI6 between 1999 and 2004, which included the period involving the invasions of Afghanistan and Iraq.

The Henry Jackson Society ‘statement of principles’, signed by Big Brother ‘opponent’, Ed Vaizey, is a mirror in theme of those outlined by the Project for the New American Century which then proceeded to use the Bush administration as its vehicle to introduce them.

The Henry Jackson Society says it stands for a ‘forward strategy’ to promote ‘democratisation’ throughout the world – see Iraq for what that really means.

I can tell you now that for George W. Bush we should read David Cameron, the leader of the UK Conservative Party of both Vaizey and Davis, who is almost certain to be the next Prime Minister in the wake of the collapsing Labour government of Gordon Brown, who is being systematically destroyed to make way for Cameron.

If anyone thinks that the Big Brother State in Britain will be turned back by Cameron and Davis when they become the government I have some seafront property in Switzerland they might like to buy.

Blair and Bush
singing from the Neocon songsheet

It was this same Neocon cabal that controlled the decade of Tony Blair and this is why he supported the actions of Bush so unquestioningly. He was following the agenda of the Neocons that controlled both Bush and the British government via Blair.

Add to this another David Davis supporter in the by-election, Conservative MP Patrick Mercer, and you start to realise what a scam and a sham this whole David Davis 'Big Brother' stance is beginning to appear.

Patrick Mercer

Patrick Mercer MP came to the by-election constituency of Haltemprice and Howden to 'oppose Big Brother' with Davis when he is a consultant for a 'security' firm called Blue Hackle, which has been likened to a British version of Blackwater, the notorious US-based private army operation employed widely and at great cost in Iraq in terms of both money and the lives of Iraqi civilians

Mercer has also been sponsored by the Hart Group on a 'fact-finding' visit to Iraq while he was officially the Conservative spokesman on Homeland Security. Here are some of the services offered by the Hart Group, sponsors of 'anti-Big Brother', Patrick Mercer:

Electronic microchipped passports.

Border control systems with a central database, face recognition and fingerprinting technology leading to 'positive identification of the individual's;

Vehicle

registration and tracking in which vehicles are microchipped to allow them to be tracked by the global positioning satellite system.

Biometric

Identification System designed to 'enable organisations to uniquely identify and even verify an individual using his fingerprints' which includes the prints being stored in a 'data warehouse' that can be accessed by the authorities 'online'.

The Hart Group is a classic Illuminati bloodline operation (see my books) involving the aristocratic Spencer, Churchill and Sinclair families.

Patrick Mercer seems to enjoy the company of such 'security firms' and I bet they while away many an hour talking about Big Brother and how terrible it all is.

They reckon you can judge people by the company they keep and on that basis alone the stand by Davis looks less and less one of principle – unless he is being duped himself.

It always seemed strange that he would just resign out of nowhere in his Big Brother protest and seek re-election on the issue. He has now become 'Mr. Anti-Big Brother' who is quoted whenever the subject is raised in the media.

This is a powerful position to be in when the Neocons are seeking to hijack and divert the growing concern about the Big Brother society. They have always used the Pied Piper technique very effectively.

It would explain the blatant contradictions of a man like David Davis, who supports capital punishment, the ultimate expression of Big Brother, State power over life and death, and so strongly backed the Neocon invasion of Iraq that pepper-bombed Baghdad, killing and maiming hundreds of thousands of civilians.

And he condemns Big Brother??

With every passing day, this by-election is looking less like a statement of principle and more like yet another Neocon scam.

The passage of time – and likely not very much – will give us a much clearer picture of what this by-election was really all about.

DAVID ICKE: BIG BROTHER – THE BIG PICTURE