

Supermarkets' Emergency Plans to Keep Shelves Full

Sunday, 14 December 2008

Supermarkets' Emergency Plans to Keep Shelves Full

'Fears that scores of supermarket suppliers will go bust next year have led the country's major chains to draw up emergency plans to replace them, The Observer can reveal. Separately, on the high street, bailiffs are getting ready for their busiest Christmas ever, with a slew of retailers expected to go into administration.'

Read more...