

Team develops DNA switch to interface living organisms with computers

Thursday, 26 October 2006

Team develops DNA switch to interface living organisms with computers

(Which will surprise no-one who has read David Icke's latest book)

'Researchers at the University of Portsmouth, UK, have developed an electronic switch based on DNA - a world-first bio-nanotechnology breakthrough that provides the foundation for the interface between living organisms and the computer world.'

Read more ...

Click here ...