The Road to Guantanamo - a must watch

Last night I watched a 'docu-drama' on Britain's Channel Four Television about 'life' at Guantanamo Bay and the treatment of people held without charge or trial by those who preach to the world about 'freedom' and 'justice'. The programme was based on the experiences of British detainees who were eventually released because they were not 'terrorists' and had done nothing illegal, except be in the wrong place at the wrong time when the goons in uniform arrived, minus brains.

You can see the programme yourself by clicking here ... if you want to know what's really happening at the Guantanamo concentration camp, it's a must watch ...
