David Icke on 'Dubplate Drama' TV Series

David Icke is appearing in the new series of the superb UK drama called 'Dubplate Drama' which is broadcast on Channel 4 and MTV. Each week it will also be available through a MySpace page and there is a link to this below.

Dubplate Drama is based around the London rap music scene and it is the world's first interactive drama series. At the end of each programme a character faces a dilemma and the viewing audience has the opportunity to vote on which decision should be made. The one that wins decides how the story continues the following week.

It is superbly directed and edited and focuses on many issues important to the lives of young people especially, although it is an excellent watch for anyone. David appears in a later episode in the series, which begins on September 20th.
