

Snake-bird gods fascinated both Aztecs and pharaohs

Tuesday, 02 October 2007

Snake-bird gods fascinated both Aztecs and pharaohs

'Ancient Mexicans and Egyptians who never met and lived centuries and thousands of miles apart both worshiped feathered-serpent deities, built pyramids and developed a 365-day calendar, a new exhibition shows.

Billed as the world's largest temporary archeological showcase, Mexican archeologists have brought treasures from ancient Egypt to display alongside the great indigenous civilizations of Mexico for the first time.'

Read more ...