

NIST Admits Total Collapse Of Twin Towers Unexplainable

Wednesday, 17 October 2007

NIST Admits Total Collapse Of Twin Towers Unexplainable

'The National Institute for Standards and Technology has been forced to admit that the total free-fall collapse of the twin towers cannot be explained after an exhaustive scientific study, implicitly acknowledging that controlled demolition is the only means by which the buildings could have come down.'

Read more ...

.....

Constitutional scholar: 9/11 'highly convenient' in allowing Bush to expand power

'A constitutional scholar says President Bush and his administration were working to expand their spy powers months before the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, which provided a "highly convenient" opportunity to dramatically strengthen law enforcement and surveillance authority.'

Read more ...